In these week Gospel Jesus does not at all say that only a few will be saved. He seems to ignore such a question as trivial and useless. The whole thrust of the Gospel is that Jesus came to bring God's love and freedom to the whole world. The message of that Gospel is that there is not a single person, not a single people, nation, race, or class, which is excluded from experiencing the love and liberation that God offers. The primary role of the Christian community has never been simply to guarantee the "salvation" of its own members. It is not the function of the Church to turn all its energies in seeing that its members "save their souls" and sometimes pray for those in "outer darkness". The role of the Christian community is first and foremost to proclaim to the whole world the Good News about God's love for the world, to share the message of the Gospel about what constitutes real living with the whole world. Realistically speaking the term to be "saved" means, to be rescued or freed of any harm and thus remain in a close loving relationship with God and with others. It is actively to share the vision of life that Jesus offered to us. "By this will all know you are my disciples that you love each other." By loving each other in the name and the spirit of Jesus is really all that is necessary to be "saved".

The next part of the discourse of Jesus deals, first of all, with the rejection of the Jewish People, which, for the most part, did not convert to Christianity. This rejection made it possible for the pagan Nations to enter the Church and thus to take for themselves the place that had been left vacant by those who were the first to be called: "And behold, some are last who will be first, and some are first who will be last." But what is most important in Jesus' discourse is the firmness and irrevocability of the following saying of the Lord: "When once the householder has risen up and shut the door, you will begin to stand outside and to knock at the door, saying, 'Lord, open to us.' He will answer you, 'I do not know where you come from.'" For the gate is definitively closed. Let us retain the following truths, which will aid us on the road of salvation: baptism is a very great sacrament, but in order to be saved, baptism is not sufficient; he who prays will certainly be saved, for, through this prayer, God will give him his grace; as the life is, so is the death: he who lives well dies well, in the love of God.

We know that in Christ, the narrow door is symbolic of the hardships of life for those who follow Jesus. It is symbolic of accepting poverty, being of a charitable heart, forgiving others, being patient, etc. It is symbolic of not being ashamed of Jesus, of going forward and proudly speaking of His salvation. It is symbolic of accepting persecution for the sake of the Most Holy Name of Jesus. Thus all those who accept Jesus and his teaching will be with him in his kingdom. When we consider the love and mercy of Jesus, we come to perceive that His love draws us towards him, "the truth, the way and the life." To qualify for the mercy of Jesus, there must be a conversion, the complete change of heart of a repentant soul that is firmly committed to embracing the truth that opens the way to eternal life in the Kingdom of God.
